From : Pauline van Hoek, People Manager of CMPR Consultancy BV
Date of interview : Wednesday 25 January 2006

She is an intelligent, independent, sparkling individual with lots of guts. This charming lady is a 47 years old workaholic and spends a lot of her time and effort on her career.

23 years ago she started as an Executive Secretary but she found herself limited within this profession. At that moment she was married to an auditor and discovered her talent with financial related matters. She switched her career, graduated successfully for SPD (Bachelor Agree) and started in 1988 as Management Accountant and Internal Audit Employee.

Besides her talent for numbers, she has a gift of languages, which is unique. Therefore she is able to stand her ground in international orientated companies. Her affinity with different cultures resulted often in closing important deals as she knew to touch the right spot with those business people.

This expert has made her way in the business world and shines in managing financial-, human resource- and sales departments. She achieves her goals through teamwork and commitment. Nardi has no 9-to-5 mentality, is to-the-point and will never hesitate in delegating work if possible. She is used to work with deadlines. She reacts extrovert when she finds herself and her team in a stressful situation and she will take every necessary effort in coming up with suitable and timesharing solutions. In the equation she needs professional support, she will not hesitate and ask for help through her network.

Her best fit is in a challenging, commercial, dynamic international business environment. Her career path and experience throughout the years evidence she can perform such an important role. The ultimate challenge gives her new opportunities, will be surprising, crosses new roads, requires creativity and commitment and last but not least gives her a lot of pleasure.
